Interests in Coal Industry in United States

NEW YORK, March 31.—Government reports indicate goodly coal supplies on hand, estimated to last fifty-one days in certain areas at least. Railroad officers asserted plans had been made to suspend certain freight trains, especially on coal roads. It is estimated that 18,000 railroad men in Pennsylvania will be out of work tomorrow as a result of the strike.

Alberta Coal Diggers Have Left Work; Pumpmen and Others Necessary to Maintain Property Left on the Job

CALGARY, March 31.—Twelve thousand miners will quit work in the Alberta mines at midnight. Operators and miners came to an agreement on Friday afternoon whereby the pumpmen and men necessary to maintain mine property will remain on at the old wage. W. E. Knowles, K.C., of Moose Jaw, the third member and chairman of the conciliation board, is expected in town tomorrow morning and the board will meet immediately.

Only Oasis in U. S. Strike Area Is Kentucky Where Contract Will Run for Another Month

NEW YORK, March 31.—Approximately 400,000 coal miners quit work tonight to enforce new wage contracts, according to union reports from all bituminous and anthracite fields. The 14th miners include 100,000 union men and some 100,000 non-union men, according to union leaders.

A number of coal diggers in Illinois and other parts left the mines at the close of work this afternoon, although the strike began officially at midnight.

The United States government decided not to take any action at present, as the situation was not deemed critical.

The only mine in the strike area was Kentucky, where 5,000 union men continued work because their contract runs another year.

Kansas miners were not despite an order of the industrial court extending the present contract a month.

The union officers ordered 13,000 men to remain in the mines to protect property from damage incident to non-operation.

In Western Canada comprising the coal fields of Alberta and eastern British Columbia, approximately 5,000 men went out.

The operators and miners came to an agreement this afternoon for keeping in the pumpmen and others to protect the mines, at salaries prevailing. The Eastern miners were not affected.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 31.—Coal production was stopped tonight by the union coal miners, who quit their day's work in the mines of Indiana, leaving the workings of the industry at a standstill.

During the day President John L. Lewis declared that the suspension of work by miners would not be accepted by the United States government, and that the industry would not be operated by the union men.

Several reports from the coal fields of the United States indicated that the strike would be a long one, and that the industry would be at a standstill.

Coal Contracts are Allocated By City Council; Relief to Single Men to be Continued One Week

Humberton, Lakehead Coal Company, and Dawson Company Secure Coal Orders—Much Interest Shown by Employees—Ald. Collins Signs Seat on Welfare Board as Protest Against Further Relief

Two matters, the allocation of the coal contract for the power house and the question of continuation of relief for the unemployed, occupied the attention of council for some two hours before any other business could be dealt with.

The first disposition of the coal contract was as follows: 15,000 tons to the Humberton mine, their price was $2.25 per ton; 10,000 tons to the Lakehead Coal Company, at $2.25 per ton, and 5,000 tons to the Dawson Company, at $2.50 per ton.

This year, owing to the anxiety of the mine operators to keep their mines running, more than ordinary relief has been shown in the city.

Several miners and others urged the council to continue the relief for the unemployed, as they were still in need of it.

Mr. Collins, who is a member of the council, stated that he would sign a seat on the welfare board as a protest against further relief.

These were: The question of marketing the livestock; the question of the removal of the British embargo; the question of the removal of the mixed farming; and the question of the removal of the mixed farming.

Today the different committees of the conference are working on these matters, and it is expected that the conference will make a number of important recommendations.

These recommendations were summarized under six main heads as follows:

(1)—The necessity of removing the British embargo on the livestock industry of the west.

(2)—The necessity of removing the British embargo on the livestock industry of the west.

(3)—The necessity of removing the British embargo on the livestock industry of the west.

Launched With Twenty States Affected

MOVE TO AVOID IMPOSSIBLE
Only Men to Continue Operations
Will Be About Five Thousand and in Kentucky

Indianapolis, Ind., March 31.—The last day of work under present wage contracts was completed today by the country's half-million union coal miners. Officially their suspension of work was to begin tonight at midnight, but virtually it was to start six hours ahead of schedule because most miners end their shifts in the morning at that hour. The extent of the suspension, however, will not be an exact tally until tomorrow, the first day of the shutdown.

LEITCHFIELD FIELD.
Leitchfield, March 31.—Coal miners in the Leitchfield and Owen's Run fields of Pennsylvania have taken tools from the mines to end production of coal in the area which is scheduled to commence at midnight tonight. About 25,000 miners and other workers dependent on the industry will be affected in the Leitchfield field. A complete list of union fields in twenty states was prepared today by officials of the United Mine Workers of America at the headquarters here and they also asserted that 100,000 men would be out of work. The down the picket President John J. Lewis said that at least 40,000 men would be out of work. He estimated that the coal industry would lose $100,000,000 a day from the shutdown. No final instructions to district leaders were given today. The day from union headquarters and officials declared any more arrests of the suspension was now impossible. The only union men expected to continue production were the 25,000 workers in southwestern Kentucky whose contract does not expire until April 1, 1922. In addition, forces in the north will be left in the mines to protect the property from looting.

Pennsylvania Affected.
Pennsylvania will turn out the largest number of men and other states affected are West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Colorado, and Washington. Western Canada also is expected to join the shutdown but not the Nova Scotia district.

In addition to reduction in wages, the coal operators have refused to continue the interval method of contract making. Reductions proposed by the operators generally amounted to forty per cent of the prevailing rate or a return to the wages established by contracts made in 1914. Some operators also insist on the abolition of the union's check-off, the plan which operators deduct union dues from the miners' wages.

STATE COMMISSION INVESTIGATE NOVA SCOTIA.
Ottawa, Mar. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Robert Baxter, president of the United Mine Workers of America, district 24, this morning sent a telegram to James Buchanan, minister of labor, asking him to have made steps to have a commission appointed to investigate mine conditions in Nova Scotia. He would seek redress for the miners' policy recently advocated by J. J. McLaughlin, district 24 secretary.

Irish Republicans Organize Publicity Dept. for Propaganda

Dublin, Mar. 31.—A publicity department has been set up by the republican section of the Irish Republican army. It issued a statement yesterday that Sunday's convention of a conservative cabinet would result in a thirty per cent reduction of the army's pay. It is charged in the statement that the Free State cabinet at Dublin had raided the munition shops of the republicans and ordered that a large number of Free State officers, including 25 who have been guarding the bank of Ireland, have fled the republicans.

PRAIRIE BUFFALO
FROM WAINWRIGHT
FOR OLD COUNTRY

Two fine specimens of the former lord of the plains and the prairie buffaloes are to be sent to the zoological gardens at London, England, by Dr. G. Smith, superintendent of the Buffalo park, who received instructions from the authorities at Ottawa to prepare the animals for shipment to the Old Country. When these arrive the west will have made a distinctive contribution to the zoological world of interest which connects the overseas world with the Canadian west. Wainwright's buffalo will help to round out the zoological collection which is probably the finest in the world.

The chorus is a real attraction among whom are Edmonstone, and a large, beautiful chorus of 150 girls.

The leading lady, Miss Jean Dawson, has the title of "Miss Scotland." The dancing is of the latest and the best style, but don't think because she is dancing that she is not a first-class comedienne. ## A TREE IN NEED

When the spring holidays set the boys of Wendover Academy free for ten days Tom Crawford accepted the invitation of his chum, Paul Stevens, to spend the vacation with him.

"I'll tell you what we will do, Tom," said Paul. "Instead of hanging around home we'll go up to Father's hunting lodge in the hills and camp out there by ourselves for a few days. Of course, the woods aren't so pleasant now as they'll be in the summer, but the snow and ice are gone and we can have some fun fishing and canoeing. You'll get acquainted with the woods and maybe you'll like it so well you'll decide to spend the long vacation

The idea pleased Tom, for he knew nothing about the big lake. A few days later they and the two boys were alone in a house on the shores of a lake that was set among heavily wooded hills. Kaster was late that year, and the green was just beginning to show. The earth was generous with dried grass and leaves and the woods were still open.

The morning after they arrived, Paul said, when they had finished breakfast: "Let's paddle across the lake and climb Old Baldy. It's a good look at the landscape. There's a wonderful view from there. We'll take the guns—you can carry the shotgun and I'll take the rifle. Probably we won't see anything we can shoot, but it's a good look at the season is closed for other game."

They padded across the lake and started the ascent of Old Baldy following a faint trail. At one place this trail ran along the edge of a steep cliff for perhaps 100 feet. Then the trail turned at right angles and struck directly up the mountain. At the point where the trail turned the cliff was about 60 feet high. The boys stopped to rest there and gaze down at the lake.

As they turned to go Paul had an accident that hurt nothing but his pride. He stepped on a patch of moss that covered a smooth bit of rock. The moss gave way and he fell. He landed on his hands and knees. He was not hurt, but he lost his balance. As he waved his arms in an effort to recover himself his rifle flew from his hand and went over the cliff.

"That's a fine trick for a fellow that's used to guns. Guess I'm in my second childhood."

He peered over the cliff. The rifle had fallen on a bed of dead leaves and did not appear to be injured.

"We'll leave it there until we come back," Paul said. "It's a long way to a path."

own the cliff. Guess we won't need the life anyhow." They went on and had gone perhaps a third of the mile, when suddenly Tom, who was in the lead, was arrested by the appearance of a small furry animal on the cliff ahead. Instinctively his gun went to his shoulder.

"Don't shoot!" cried Paul, sharply. But he was too late. Tom, obeying the impulse of a green man in the woods, pulled the trigger. The little animal squealed in agony and rolled over and over, clawing at its sides.

"Run!" cried Paul again. "Run for your life! Climb the first tree you can!"

"Keep climbing," shouted Paul from his tree. "We may after us."

THEY CLIMBED. Indeed, try to

"under to trust after she had reached the river branches. But she kept racing furiously from one tree to the other, venting her anger against the trunks and belling and rattling like a bellows. She was so angry that I saw her spit blood. She was now swinging under her, and now lay on some limbs about eight feet from the trees. A little animal kept up a pitiful moaning and whining and this seemed to keep the latter rather quiet."

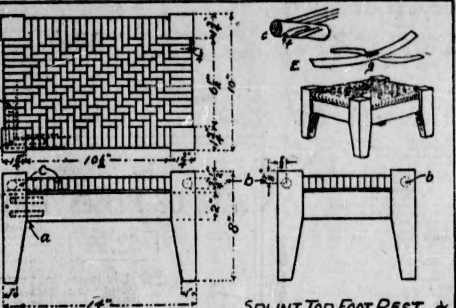

"The Wall," cried Paul, "were safe for the present, but there's no telling how long it will take me to reach here. That cub is bad—bad!"

"But and so long as it stays here a long time, it may do us good." I said.

"Yes, if she's likely to stay by it for a long while. I guess we're better off for a good while less the cub rovers enough to travel."

He was a good prophet. The cub would make no effort to move even though the boy had tried to coax it to go. She stayed beside it now most... of the time but kept sharp eye on the trees and made furious charges at them when the boys moved. The day wore on. The sun slowly sank the west until it had but an hour long.

The HANDY BOY AT HOME
BY CHARLES A. KING,
STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, PLYMOUTH, N. H.

This splint top seat rest will be an addition to the effort of any home in which there are little folks to be seated or older ones to be accommodated.

Prepare the four legs and the rails: Make the dowels joints between the rails and the legs as at A. Glue the dowels into the ends of the rails and lay them aside until they can be fitted more easily this way than if left loose. Here "B" holes in the legs as shown at B to receive the "C" dowels. Prepare the "C" dowels, selecting only straight grained and strong (place Miller's seal around as shown at C. Dry all the pieces together, fitting one corner at a time, numbering each piece to avoid confusion when putting them together. Smooth and sandpaper the rails and the age after the dowel joints have been firmly fitted, and glue the two ends and rails and their legs together; be sure the dowel is in its place, and that the legs are not twisted. After the glue has thoroughly hardened, fasten the two side rails and "dolly" the dowels the same way, and be sure that the top of the foot rest is straight and out of the wind. Allow sufficient time for the glue to set; remove all varnish stains and finish as desired.

For the backrest, cut a piece of plywood the hickory plate or a furniture dealer will tell where they may be purchased; and mail them; send address if request is accompanied by a self-addressed stamped envelope. The cost will be about 25 cents each.

back the most end of setting illustrated at e back the first strand at f, at least 6" from the end of the split, to avoid splitting. To weave over and under lengthwise, split the entire width of the sent between the endings, then weave crosswise the entire distance between the front and back legs. To weave crosswise, split the entire width of the sent and indicated as g, which will keep the ends out of sight. The weave of the bottom should be similar to the top; note that each split in the bottom is made by passing the front strand over the back strand, when weaving. When it may be either over one or under one. The splints should be thoroughly soaked in water before weaving is begun. The more the splints are soaked, the more thoroughly given life, durability will be increased. If dried two coats of shellac.

This Little Pig Stayed at Home

The place where lived the little pig was very far away
From all the things most any child was seeing every day.
Of wonders yet unknown to him the motor car was one,
And so, of course, as you'll agree, he'd missed a lot of fun
But strange things often happen when we don't expect them to,
And piggie's next adventure was both very strange and new
He met an tow just at eve and didn't step aside—
So there remains a tale to tell of how he took a ride!

Puzzle Corner

He works all through April. Today hibernated and now he is having a terrible time. There are as many flowers coming to be helped out! He's opening a door for one now. Can you find which one? Cut out and fill the blank bits together so that will tell you.

How Herb Won the Reward

There had been such a lot of talk about Robert Jordan before he came that everybody in the school had an idea about him. With Laughlin thought he would have short hair and a rather bored but interesting manner, but her brother was sure he would be dark and despise girls and st Herb still stuck. Then old Mr. Sanchez did his last trick. He threw himself down on his side and rolled over and over in the sawdust. Of course, Herb got up and then rolled over and over too. Everybody just whooped with joy.

Ten Million Knock

You wouldn't—you couldn't—feed a starving child, a child at your door. You wouldn't ask for care—about race or nation. Ten million starving children knock at our door, crying for help. They are the unconscious victims of the most terrible famine in world history. As Mr. Lloyd George said, "It is an appalling a disaster that has befallen the world."

Food is rearing many thousands of children such as these.
